In response to overwhelming demand, the research team at Asian Glass magazine is currently working on a trio of reports that will provide the first, one-stop documents covering the current situation and future prognosis of Asia's emerging solar glass and related industries.

Asian Solar is a three-part multivalent study, aimed at companies looking to either manufacture solar glass products, or sell ancillary services to these sectors.

Asia represents arguably the most exciting solar glass and photovoltaic markets anywhere across the globe, and as a result this three part study has zeroed in on what are the most dynamic markets in that.

Our team of analysts based across the whole continent are working on:

- examining the current output and supply status of solar glass
- demand trends, both now and over the next five years based on a whole range of legislative, environmental and financial criteria
- opportunities for geographical "sun-spots" (hot spots!) where solar glass and its associated supply industries, have the greatest chance of rapid expansion
- PV and solar markets outside these three regions that offer potential for exported products
- Solar glass and solar power versus other traditional and alternative fuel types on cost, supply, likelihood of success, and political will
- Finance: how much have these companies got? Who is ready to invest? Where will the funding come from?

We provide the answers to the questions you have always needed to know about these three key solar industry areas. Don't slip behind, be ready to maximise your opportunities in Asia's solar industry.

About us...

Asian Glass magazine was launched in 2001 as the first bi-monthly magazine totally dedicated to the glass manufacturing and supply industries from Turkey through the Middle East, Russia, the sub-continent and right on to the Far East and South East Asia. Over 35 countries get our constant analysis, whilst manufacturers and industry suppliers worldwide benefit from our in-depth coverage of the globe's most important glass manufacturing base. However, it is not only the focus of our coverage that is unique, it is the information we provide that stands out Asian Glass as the industry's leading information provider.
